Award-winning chef Jose Garces owns several restaurants in town, but if you really want to explore a taste of Spain throughout its varietals, check out Tinto's wine bar (and restaurant), which showcases a carefully chosen wine list of lesser-known vintages. If you're hungry, be sure to order a few authentic plates to go along with your selected wines. And if you're in the mood for sangria, this is the place to order it. This chic yet comfortable hotspot usually has a few house-made options every night, so be sure to ask about the specials.
